TELLS OF DIFFERENCES IN REPORTS

Says Peary Would Allow Nothing Of Cook's To Be Brought Back On The Roosevelt
With Him.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
St. John, N. P., Sept. 28.—The Arctic vessel, "Jeannette," with Harry Whitney of New Haven, Conn., on board, has arrived here from the Greenland coast via Indian Harbor, Labrador.
Mr. Whitney said Dr. Cook arrived at Annotok last April and told him he had been to the pole the year before, but he pledged him to tell Peary nothing except he had passed Peary's farthest north.
Peary's steward, Murphy, had charge of both Cook's and Peary's stores in Greenland and had instructions from Peary to use Dr. Cook's stores first, but if Dr. Cook arrived to give him every help.
Dr. Cook came into Annotok without a sled, but the next day the Eskimos brought it in. It contained Cook's instruments, clothes and food.
At Dr. Cook's request, Whitney took charge of the scientific instruments, but Cook left no written records that Whitney knew of.
Whitney said he told Peary that Cook intrusted to him certain belongings to bring home. Peary declined, Whitney says, to permit Cook's belongings to be brought aboard the "Roosevelt."
Whitney thereupon went ashore, and with the assistance of Captain Bartlett, commander of the "Roosevelt," separated Cook's property from his own baggage, and repacked them in boxes and left them ashore.
Now Cook's arrival would add Dr. Cook materially in substantiating his story of the discovery of the pole. It appears now that the missing data has never been in Whitney's possession.
It is also understood that Peary is at Bar Harbor, Me., where he is making plans for his next expedition of Cook and his methods. He is expected to have something definite to say within a day or two.
It is also reported that Dr. Cook will also make charges against Peary and that he will begin suit for damages, alleging slander and libel contained in Peary's statements regarding him and his work.

SUPPER NOT READY. MAN DESTROYS HOME TO SPITE HIS WIFE

Thomas LaPointe Arrested for Destroying Home and Furniture After Petty Disappointment.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Wausau, Wis., Sept. 28.—Thomas LaPointe was arrested at Moon, this county, yesterday by Madison authorities, for the alleged setting fire to and destroying his home Saturday night. It is charged that in a fit of spite against his wife because his supper was not ready he destroyed the furniture and set fire to the house which was entirely burned down.
City Hall Tangle.
Judge Reid has issued a temporary injunction upon the mayor, city treasurer and common council restraining them from transferring any more of the city hall funds to the general or other funds, as asked for in a complaint filed with the court by petitioners. It is alleged that the mayor, city treasurer and common council have and intend to do, and have appropriated of the $10,000 fund accumulated and appropriated for the erection of a city hall and that other sums appropriated by the council, but not yet paid out by the treasurer. The complaint asks that the defendant appear Saturday, Oct. 2, and show cause why the injunction shall not be made permanent and why they should not pay back into the city hall fund all amounts taken from the same. The petition alleges that the defendants have no intention of carrying out the expressed will of the people and erect a city hall and are using the money raised for that purpose to meet other expenses.

CITY ENJOINED BY MESSRS. JACKMAN

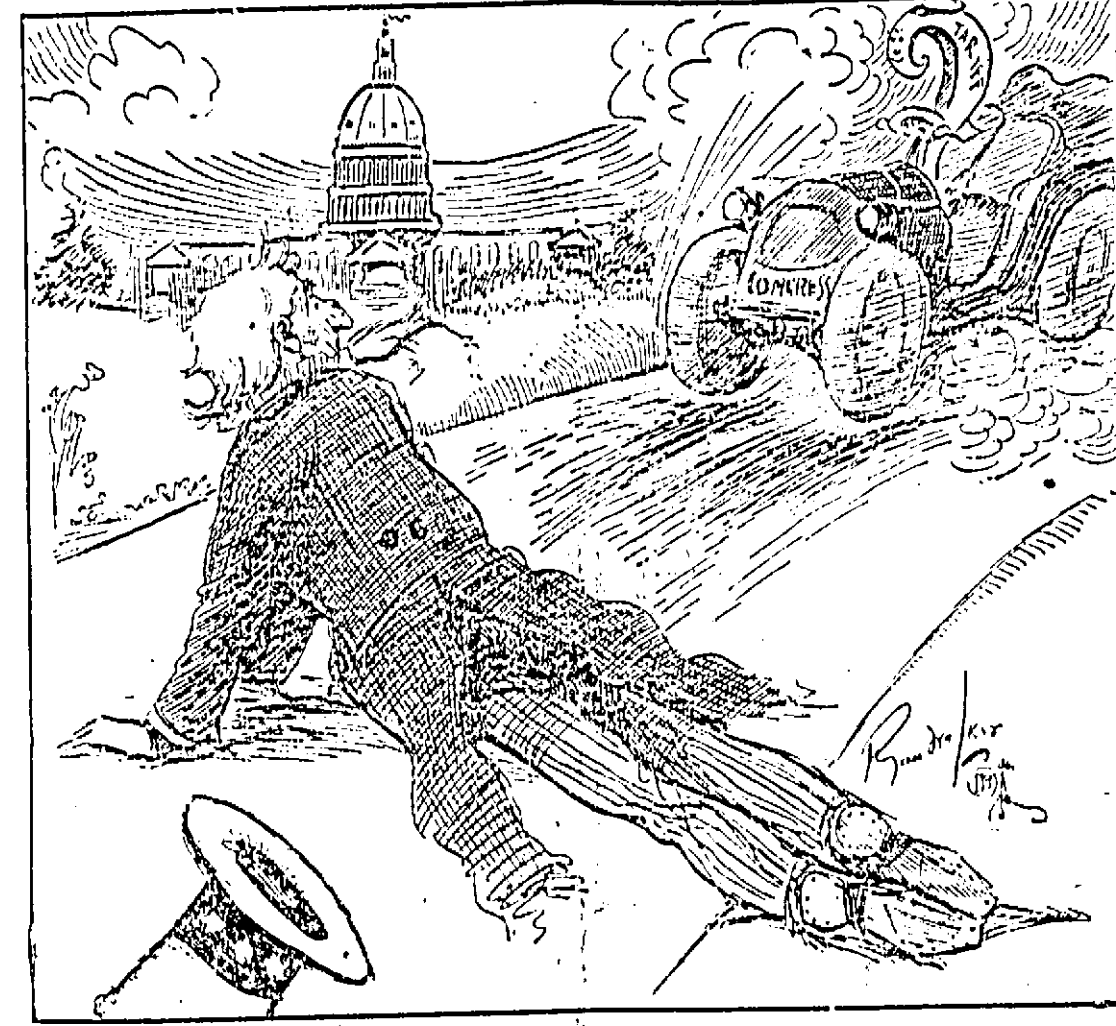

From Removing "No Thoroughfare" Signs From An Undedicated Portion of Garfield Avenue.
Following upon the action of the common council last evening in directing the street commissioner to remove certain "No Thoroughfare" signs from an undedicated section of Garfield avenue lying between Milwaukee and Court streets and directing that officer to do so forthwith, the attorney, H. J. Jackman, today started in circuit court an injunction action to restrain the city from carrying out any such procedure. The strip of land in question is two rods wide and includes two marginal lots set aside when the Jackman addition was platted and it was evidently contemplated that if the owner of the land on the other side, Fred S. Sheldon, was willing to donate a like strip two rods wide, a road might sometime be built there. As a matter of fact, the city was turned up with a plow and tumbled, after a fashion, but the owners afterwards changed their minds about giving the city a street and posted the signs. Inasmuch as it has been open less than two years and is not chartered in any plat, it is hard to see how the city is going to establish its claim to the land.

HANDBILL WARFARE STIRS UP COUNTY

Onelida County Graft Investigation Is Most Amusing At Present.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Wausau, Wis., Sept. 28.—"The graft investigation in Onelida county has grown to be an extremely interesting and at the same time an amusing affair," said a prominent resident of Onelida who was in this city on business yesterday. "It has divided the people of the county into two factions and set them into a warfare of handbills flying 'hot shots' and sharp sarcasm at each other. One faction looks upon the investigation as a big farce and the other side is of the firm belief that the step taken is one for the benefit of the moral welfare of the community, that of breaking up and perhaps ridding the county of a gang of hoodlums and 'big m' men.'"
The investigation was started several months ago at the instance of a petition of some of the taxpayers of the town of Onelida to Judge Reid of this city to call a grand jury to look into the public affairs of that town. Indictments were returned against three men of that town and they will have their trial at the next term of circuit court of Onelida county, which opened Monday, Judge Reid presiding.
Friends of the accused men say there is absolutely no grounds whatever to the charges made.
Following is a sample of one of the attacks made in the warfare being waged by the two factions:
"A FINAL REPORT OF TOWN PROCEEDINGS."
"We have brought on a grand jury. We have built a temporary sewer. We are running our sewers in the lake, so the waters may become polluted. We have built a temporary water plant at a cost of $10,000. We have supported blind pigs so as to keep votes for spring elections. We have raised the rate of taxation to six per cent. We have brought on six lawyers. We can't see why the taxpayers should stand for six more. We have piled in a pile of sand for a bridge between here and Woodville known as the Rogers bridge. We have dug the biggest hole in Frank Rogers' farm that was dug in any farm in the state. If the taxpayers will respect us we will put a roof over it and try to induce Ringling Bros. circus to come and make it a winter quarters, which will mean a big thing for Onelida."
"We have brought on more corruption than any town in the state. We have kept the taxpayers from having a voice in any election for the last ten years by bringing votes from East Lake, Arbor Vitae and elsewhere. We have had men netting as supporters who could not read nor write and who are not American citizens. We have built private sewers for our friends and brothers and charged the same to the taxpayers. We are the heaviest taxpayers, but we always have the taxpayers pay our taxes. We have bought a lot of property since we held town office. We have a ring of six men who know where the money goes and no one else. We have had $80,000 paid in the last three years, but it was not enough, can't see why the taxpayers are not more liberal. We are known as the chicken soup officials and our aim is to throw the soup into the taxpayers. We have served the town of Onelida for the last ten years and we fear we will serve ten years for it. We want to be re-elected as we need the money to fight a grand jury as it is a bad thing."
"Yours sincerely,
"ONE OF THE SIX."

LAND PARADE IS TODAY'S FEATURE

DIG HISTORICAL PAGEANT AT HUDSON-FULTON CELEBRATION.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

CROWDS ARE ENORMOUS

Extending in Two Solid Walls Along Line of March—Story of Manhattan Told in Spectacle.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, Sept. 28.—Gotham had the opportunity today of seeing practically the whole of her history unfolded before her own eyes in living portraits and brilliant symbolic display. It was the day of the historical parade in connection with the Hudson-Fulton festivities and, perhaps the biggest day of the entire celebration.
The pageant with its sixty floats and thousands of men and women in costume formed at Central Park West and 110th street and marched down Central Park West to Fifty-ninth street, across Fifty-ninth street to Fifth avenue to Washington Square. Two walls of humanity stretching for miles along the line of march, formed the setting for the historic picture. People fought to get a glimpse of the pageant and hundreds of women were taken crushed and fainting from the congested carpers. Nine thousand policemen were employed to keep the crowds in check. Relief hospitals had been established all along the route and every one was kept busy. Thousands of persons were turned back at every interesting street, unable to crowd their way into the grand stands or upon the few sections of open walk.
The spectators filled the windows, balconies and every point of vantage along the entire route. Ten great revolving stands were located at prominent street intersections for the accommodation of state and city officials and other notables. The representatives of twenty-two foreign nations occupied seats in the official reviewing stand erected in the gorgeous court of honor on Fifth avenue opposite the new Public Library.
For three hours or more the great throngs gazed upon succeeding tableaux. Each float of the four divisions was drawn by horses harnessed in the fashion of the periods depicted. There were outriders and escorts in appropriate costume for each display. As the pageant, heralded by trumpets and standard bearers, moved along it told the intertwining stories of city and state from the days of the Indian to the present time. Through the long chain of scenes the pageant made its way in a wealth of color.
The first car of the parade was one representing the Empire state. Following this came the nine floats of the first division, bearing the following titles: "Hawallah," "The Five Nations," "The First Schemer of the Ironsides," "Season of Blossoms," "Reason of Fruits," "Season of Hunt," "Season of Snow" and "Indian War Dance."
Then followed a section representing the Dutch period. There were floats showing the discovery of Manhattan, the reception of Stuyvesant, Bowling Green, Gov. Leisler and the "Hudsonians" and "St. Nicholas."
From this time on spectators moved rapidly. It was not long before the spectators saw Washington, Lafayette, Robert Fulton and others in the various scenes of their patriotic activities. They saw the capture of the city of Washington, the battle of Antietam, the storming of Stony Point, the reception of Lafayette, Washington's home on Staten Island, the statue of Liberty, and "Father Knickerbocker Receiving."
Interspersed with the floats were delegations of marchers from the Irish, French, Danish, Norwegian, Italian, Scotch, German and Syrian societies of Greater New York. The pageant was a success in every particular. It had been carefully planned and as carefully carried out. Historians, students, and artists had given their services freely and the whole had been prepared at city expense.

ALDERMAN SCOTT'S MEASURE PASSED LAST EVENING.

BROWN'S PAY DISALLOWED

And Patrolman Will Take An Appeal to Circuit Court—Taylor's Corn-Crib Must Go.

By a vote of 5 to 4, the common council last evening passed Alderman Scott's ordinance regulating the moving picture shows. Those who opposed the measure were Aldermen Buchholz, Dullin, Kimball, and Sheridan. It had been altered to some extent from its original form and leaves the theatre exits and approaches and the safeguards about the heating apparatus to the discretion of the fire chief. It is stipulated that all machines must be operated in galleries from compartments with asbestos sheeting; that the rheostat shall be located not less than 12 inches from the walls and not less than 21 inches from the floor; that no operator must be experienced and at least 21 years of age; and that no spectators shall be allowed to stand in the aisles. The ordinance will be in effect after its publication for three consecutive days. At the instance of the Judiciary committee, Officer Sam Brown's $90 claim for services as the tollman last spring was laid on the table. Alderman Brown voted in the negative, and an appeal will be taken to the circuit court. Street Commissioner Watson was directed to remove all buildings on South River street, between the Union and Rock street intersections, including a corner lot alleged to have been owned there by J. A. Taylor. The Lewis Knitting Co. was given permission to use portions of South Second and Park streets while building an addition to the factory, with the understanding that the city should be held free from all damages and that the sidewalks should be kept clear at all times. Alderman Buchholz took exception to the terms of an order granting permission to the Lane Automobile Co. to swing a sign across the thoroughfare in front of its garage on North Main street and on his motion the matter was referred to the highway committee for investigation. Aldermen Dullin, Kimball, Rehfeld, and Sheridan voted against the said reference. Alderman Rehfeld was absent from the meeting.

Matters of Finance.
The finance committee's report on bills and the salary list were adopted and the Mayor was authorized by order to borrow $5,000 and place the same to the credit of the school fund; also to borrow $1,000 and place the amount to the credit of the fire and water fund. The city clerk was directed to draw the following orders on the treasurer: one for $11.56, payable to John Lutz from the first ward fund for building a brick gutter on Chatham street; one for $23 payable to Fred Benke from the general fund for services as special policeman, Sept. 1 to Sept. 15; and one for $400 in favor of W. J. Hill ($291.40) payable from the general fund and $108.61 from the first ward fund in partial settlement for concrete work. The treasurer was directed to transfer $120 from the general fund to the fire and water fund in compensation for certain fire hose turned over to the street department.

Notice of Injury Tabled.
On recommendation of the Judiciary committee, J. J. Hallen's motion that he would hold the city liable for injuries alleged to have been sustained by a horse at the intersection of North Palm and Ravine streets on Sept. 13, was laid on the table. The county treasurer's communication calling attention to the fact that the county's share of the saloon license money had not been turned over, was placed on file. The contract and bond of G. D. Cannon, the bond and specifications submitted by D. W. Ryan, and the guarantee bond of John Lutz for street improvement work, were all found to be in due form and accepted.

Highways And Ferries.
At the instance of the highway committee, the street assessment committee's favorable reports on the plans for improving North Franklin street, from Ravine street to Mineral Point avenue; Ravine street, from North River to North High street; and North Bluff street, from North First to Glen street, were adopted, and resolutions assessing the benefits and damages were passed. Similar action was taken with regard to the street assessment committee's report favoring the acceptance of proposals for the improvement of North First, Division, West Bluff, and Racine streets. Sept. 13, Dullin's report that the stone crusher had delivered 665 yards of road material during the two weeks ending Sept. 25, was accepted. Favorable action was also taken on Street Commissioner Watson's report on new sidewalks needed and the sidewalk walks were ordered built. Chairman Buchholz of the committee on improvements moved the adoption of the street assessment committee's report on proposals received for the laying of additional sewers in Districts 10, 11, and 14, this season, and recommending the award of the contract to Emil Coehms & Son of Sturgeon Bay, the lowest of the six bidders.

Miscellaneous Orders.
The city engineer was directed to measure all sidewalks and other cement work done by W. J. Hill, under contract with the city, and report on the same.
The street commissioner was directed by order to notify the owners of all property on the west side of Franklin street, from West Milwaukee to Wall street, and on the easterly side of the Corn Exchange square to pave the gutters. In front of their premises with brick within a period of twenty days; to remove the signs and notices placed on Garfield avenue, between the Milwaukee and Court street intersections, and repair that thoroughfare at an expense not exceeding three dollars; to clean the gutters on Grand and S. Cherry streets and Eastern avenue and repair Center street with gravel; to sell the Lane Auto & Supply Co. iron gutter plates at cost; and to build brick crosswalks at the following points: across Locust street on the south side of School street; across School street on the east side of Locust street; across South Jackson street on the south side of Western avenue, and across High street at the intersection of Race street.

The width of the sidewalks on St. Mary's avenue, each side of the thoroughfare, was established at four feet. The city clerk was directed to renew the $250 insurance policies on the two voting booths.

BOWER CITY ELEVEN IS TO PLAY BELOW

High School Football Players Meet Line City Team on Keep Field at Beloit Saturday.

Next Saturday the Janesville high school football eleven will play with the Beloit high school team on Keep Field at Beloit. It was originally intended to have Beloit play here if possible, but the use of the college athletic grounds was secured. The game promises to be a good one. Both teams are about evenly matched for weight and it will undoubtedly be a contest of skill and teamwork, with the clearest winning. The local team will be accompanied by a large crowd of rooters to cheer them on to victory. The lineup has not yet been picked but it will probably be almost the same as last Saturday, there being a few changes that will be made.

The following Saturday the first game on the home grounds will be played. The date has not yet been fixed but it is thought that a contest will then be played with Whitewater Normal.

The first accident of the season occurred last evening, when Raymond Faller, who played center in the game last Saturday had his collarbone broken. Faller, in attempting to tackle another player, missed and struck on his collarbone.

The Food Route

is the safest way to steady health.

Many people are kept ill because they do not know how to select food that their own particular bodies will take up and build upon.

What will answer for one will not do for another.

If one is ailing it is safe to change food entirely and go on a plain, simple diet—say,

Cooked Fruit,
Saucer of Grape-Nuts and Cream,
Soft Boiled Eggs,
Slice of Toast,
Cup of Postum.

Such a diet makes one feel good after a few days.

The most perfectly made food for human use is

Grape-Nuts

Pennsylvania State Prison Unsatisfactory, Says Government.
Warden John Francis.

Pittsburg.—Conditions at the western penitentiaries have been declared so unsatisfactory that preparations will be made shortly for the removal from it of all the 21 federal prisoners.

C. H. McGlason of the department of prisons and prisoners has reported to Attorney General Wickham that 300 of the inmates of the institution are victims of tuberculosis at all the penitentiaries kept idle at all the penitentiaries. McGlason is forced to occupy one small cell and that the quality of foods has caused universal complaint.

Warden John Francis of the penitentiary admitted that all but one of the charges were true, but he denied any responsibility for the conditions there. He declared that since he took charge, a little more than two months ago, that numerous changes had been made in the administration of the penitentiary which redounded greatly to the benefit of the prisoners.

The scratching of an industrious hen under the porch of the house of William M. Skinner of Lakewood, N. Why Yankee Bread is Baked In Steam YEAST continues to ferment until the bread is baked in a heat of 212 degrees.

Your kitchen stove has a maximum temperature of 200 degrees while the centre of the loaf rarely exceeds 100 degrees.

And it is dry heat.

Such heat crisps the crust and then cannot penetrate the center of the loaf. The crust keeps out the heat but retains the moisture.

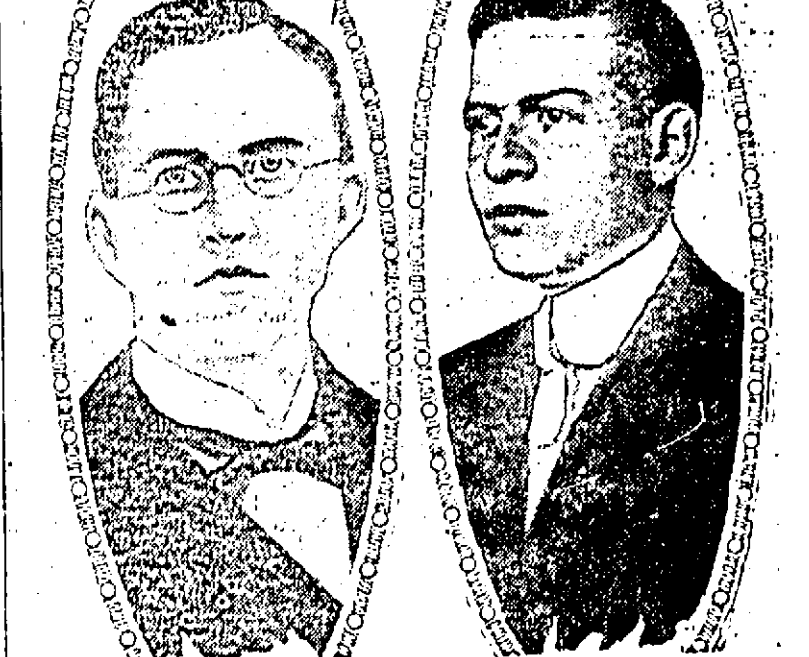

Thus while your loaf is damp the center is only half baked.

The yeast cells continue to ferment in the stomach and cause indigestion.

But our steam keeps the crust moist until the inside is fully baked. Then we turn off the steam and let the bread come slowly to a rich brown crust.

That's why Yankee Bread is so delicious—every yeast cell is killed and it has a delightful flavor that is simply enticing. Try a loaf tomorrow, from your grocer or our wagon which passes your house each day. Price 5c the loaf.

George H. Colton before public trial.

Confesses Killing of Children.
Utica, N. Y., Sept. 28.—The mystery which for many days surrounded the kidnapping of three little Italian children and the murder of two of them in the Eagle street culvert two weeks ago last Sunday night, was solved beyond doubt, the police say, when they secured a full confession from Theodore Rizzo, who has been held as a suspect for more than a week. Rizzo, it is claimed, assaulted the two little girls, but when they threatened to tell their fathers he shot them, and the little boy as well, leaving all three for dead. A charge of murder in the first degree was made against Rizzo.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 28.—The Great Northern railroad has put into operation a mail express train which will cut 11 hours off of the present running time between St. Paul and Seattle and make it possible to deliver mail from the east 24 hours earlier in the Puget sound cities. Always There.
If all who count themselves happy were to tell, very simply, what it was that brought happiness to them, the others would see that between sorrow and joy the difference is but as between a gladness, enlightened acceptance of life and a hostile, gloomy submission; between a large and harmonious conception of life and one that is stubborn and narrow.—Master, Black.

TAFT IN MONTANA; IN AN IRON CAGE

AT BUTTE HE DESCENDS 1,200-FOOT MINE IN MIDNIGHT DARKNESS.

HAS THRILLING AUTO RIDE

Addresses Several Large Gatherings—He Suffers from Sprained Tendon of Foot—Postmaster General Hitchcock Joins Presidential Party.

Helena, Mont., Sept. 28.—President Taft had the rare experience of seeing miners at work 1,200 feet below the surface at the famous Old Leonard copper mine at Butte. Attired in a linen duster, an old black slouch hat and swinging an electric lantern at his side the chief executive was locked in a narrow iron cage and dropped through midnight darkness into the depths of the earth.

When he had ascended with a whiz, after half an hour under ground, the president, blinking in the glare of the noonday sun, was cheered to the echo by the crowd of curious people gathered at the hoist. He declared enthusiastically:

"I would not have missed it for the world."

Thrilling Auto Ride.
It was the president's first visit to the Montana copper district and between the smelters at Anaconda and the mines at Butte he had a series of interesting experiences. Not the least of these was a thrilling automobile ride over the mountains from Butte to the mouth of the Leonard mine. The grades were steep and winding but the chauffeurs were experienced men, and while there was apparently no threat of danger at any stage of the trip, there was a sigh of relief when Mr. Taft had once more been placed safely aboard the Mayflower for the run to Helena.

Arriving here, he went directly to the state fair grounds where, after viewing a portion of the exhibits he made an open-air address and witnessed a race of cowboys. Returning to the city Mr. Taft reviewed a parade of school children.

Leaves for Spokane.
Leaving here he headed direct for Spokane where he delivered his formal speech on the subject which holds supreme interest to all the west—the conservation of the natural resources and the reclamation of arid lands.

President Taft walked with a limp when he first got off the train at Anaconda, the result of a sprained tendon in his right foot. The sprain occurred at Beverly. There is nothing serious about the sprain and Mr. Taft did not let it interfere in any way with his plans.

Speaks at Butte.
The president made a flying trip through the Washoe smelter of the Amalgamated Copper Company at Anaconda, then proceeded into the city and after a brief address took the train for Butte. The crowds which greeted him on the streets there were the largest he had seen since leaving Chicago.

The police had their hands full in opening a way for the automobile procession and after the president's car had passed the crowd swarmed in its wake. Speaking at the courthouse the president looked out upon a mass of humanity that blocked the square and spread far down the converging streets. He made a decided hit with the great throng when he told of the wonderful impression the country was making upon him, and ending by saying: "I am like the old Dutchman who said: 'The more you live the more you find, by golly.'"

Postmaster General Hitchcock, who joined the president at Anaconda, and Secretary Ballinger accompanied the president in the picturesque trip down the dark chute and through the crosscuts and drifts of the deep level.

TO USE ENGLISH IN CHURCH.
German Synod Permits Best Understood Language to Be Used.

Burlington, Ia., Sept. 28.—Action which is believed to be the opening wedge for the introduction of English in church services, now conducted entirely in German, was taken by the general conference of the German Evangelical Synod of North America in session here. A resolution was passed permitting the language best understood in the community to be used in young people's societies of the church.

Resolutions were adopted providing for enlarged and more efficient church periodicals.

The report of the committee on church federation, which was adopted, favors joining the federation, provided that no church is admitted which does not believe in the divinity of Christ.

Goshen, N. Y., Sept. 28.—The will of E. H. Harriman was probated without objection at Goshen. Papers in which Mrs. Harriman qualified as sole executrix were presented and letters testamentary were granted to her.

Alleged Forger Is Held.
Boston, Sept. 28.—Charged with being a fugitive from justice, Edmund G. Hyatt, charged by the police of Quincy, Ill., with forgery, was held in $3,000 bonds in the municipal court to await requisition papers.

Mrs. Roosevelt Reaches Venice.
Venice, Sept. 28.—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Ethel, has arrived here.

Uncle Ezra Says:
"A man ain't half so apt to hide his light under a bushel or be so hide somethin' that won't stain the light."

APPLES AND GOLF FOR TAFT.

Washington Serves Choice Fruit and Short Golf to President.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 28.—Apples and golf were the special attractions offered by Spokane to President Taft, who reached this city early this morning. The apples, choicest of Washington's fruit, were served in all manner of ways at the meals offered the president, and the golf—a short game—was given him at Hayden Lake, a summer resort 30 miles from the city, where he was taken after an automobile ride through the Spokane valley.

On the arrival of the presidential train the party was given breakfast by the trustees of the Chamber of Commerce, after which there was a big parade of military and civic organizations. Mr. Taft reviewed the parade from a stand at Riverside avenue and Monroe streets, and then delivered an address. He was formally welcomed by Mayor Pratt and introduced by Judge Whitson. F. B. Goodall presided. In the evening the president will be given a game dinner at the Bonanza tavern, leaving soon after for North Yakima and Seattle.

JANESVILLE BOOSTERS

The young men who are now engaged in raising money to boost Janesville are working along the right line and are meeting with success. Various clubs have been organized during the past twenty years with the same object in view, and the most of them have died a natural death.

The membership fee has usually been placed at from $5 to $10 a year, and the money spent in a series of banquets devoted largely to deploring conditions, passing resolutions, and waiting for something to turn up.

It is well for the businessmen to get together and spend an evening now and then in social intercourse. These gatherings tend to cultivate friendly relations, and furnish an opportunity for unloading a lot of bottled-up oratory which might otherwise be wasted, but the Twilight and Social Union clubs, with an evening occasionally at the "Elks," are sufficient to keep a man good-natured and in social touch with his neighbors.

In the meantime what of the town? More houses to sell and to rent than at any time in its history. The only way lots can be sold is on the installment plan—one dollar down and fifty cents a week, and when the buyer recovers from the hypnotic spell he wonders where he was at, and what he is going to do with his newly acquired real estate.

The school census shows that we have fifteen more children than we had a year ago. Of course that's better than losing fifteen, but it's mighty slow growth and very unsatisfactory to men who are ambitious for the welfare of the city.

The new movement, started by a few young businessmen, the other night, is without name or organization. It differs in this respect from any previous effort. The fact is recognized that talk is cheap, but that money is the lever which moves things, and so the various committees are asking men to give from $25 to $100 a year to create a permanent fund for the advancement of Janesville.

If enough money is secured, and not less than $5,000 is needed, an experienced man will be employed to work for the building up of the city, and the same methods adopted which are successfully used in other inland cities. Get the money first and organize afterwards, was the motto adopted. It is a young man's campaign, and the young men are thoroughly competent to handle it. Lend them a hand and you may be surprised at results.

THE MAN BEHIND THE GUN

The American navy has long been noted for good marksmanship and the following paragraph from "Colliers" of September 25 indicates that the reputation is well sustained:

"Too accurate shooting delayed the recent target practice of the Atlantic fleet off Cape Henry. So proficient were the gun-pointers that after a few days of firing three of the floating targets were destroyed utterly, and others—two dismantled torpedo-boats and a target barge—had to be withdrawn for repairs. This year, for the first time, moving targets were used, and the sea off Cape Henry was rough.

"Under such unfavorable conditions, remarkable results were recorded. One gun crew on the Louisiana made a record of one hundred per cent at one target in the preliminary firing for choosing pointers. The marksmen of the Vermont, who last year in Manila bay won the battle practice pennant, kept up their splendid work. An innovation this year was the use of cinematographs to take moving pictures of the silhouettes of the shots; when targets were shot away last year hits were merely estimated by the observers."

"The man behind the gun" tells the story of efficiency, not only in target practice, but in every other department of human endeavor. The United States navy is liberally supplied with modern equipment, and the most generous policy is adopted in perfecting gunners.

The fleet is just now in New York as one of the principal attractions in the Hudson-Pulton celebration. The target practice which was kept up through the summer cost the government $750,000 in ammunition alone.

This, of course, is considered an extravagant waste of money by people who believe that any navy is a menace to international peace. This is not the prevailing opinion, however, and the nation is proud of the men and the equipment so well prepared to protect and defend in time of an emergency.

When Dewey entered Manila harbor and demolished the Spanish fleet the people realized that money invested in target practice had not been wasted, and the man behind the gun continues to be the center of attraction.

RADICAL REFORMERS

The way in which the Chinese of Shanghai have grappled with the opium evil shows them to be men of strong character. An edict went forth last year forbidding the sale or the sowing of poppy seeds, and Paul L. Corbin, an American board missionary at Tientsin, writes: "It is hard to believe but it is true nevertheless that old Shanghai in a single season absolutely and completely stopped the cultivation of the opium poppy." The words of ex-President Taft of Dartmouth may yet be fulfilled. "For aught we know," he says, "before the century is out America may need China in a Christian way as much as today China needs America." Perhaps these Shanghai men can give us points on how to enforce our laws against the sale of alcoholic drinks and other evils.

The stars were glimmering overhead when the farmer rose from his downy bed; he yawned, as he rapped on the bedroom door:

DOWN ON "GOT UP, BOYS, UP! THE FARM

I was, as young and as spry as you, I always got out of bed at two! Boys nowadays aren't worth a hang; I never saw such a lazy gang; it's four o'clock and you're still in bed, and the cows not milked and the hogs not fed; I reckon you'd sleep all day and more, if I didn't break down the bedroom door! Get up, get up! It will soon be dawn, and the heat of the morning then is gone!"

The boys obeyed him and quit their snoring, and donned their raiment and went outdoors. The farmer sat by the kitchen range, where his wife was working, and said: "It's strange how the boys are crazy to quit the farm—the city life has a wondrous charm. They have lots to eat and a place to sleep, and they're always sure of their board and keep, and why they're anxious to quit the land, is something I cannot understand." The good wife said, in an undertone, as she placed in the skillet a piece of bacon, and stuck her fork in some thingummy: "It's maybe because they are not pigs."

SAVES TRYING ON HATS

Various Styles Painted on Cards, With Opening for Face.

Whether the military device designed by a New York man will be as popular as it is ingenious remains to be seen. According to the prevailing opinion of a woman's department in a military store, it does not seem likely. The device consists of a large card with an opening large enough to admit a woman's head. Above this opening is painted a hat of some particular design, while below is a design to represent a bust portion of a woman's waist. The idea is to have a military outfit with a painted reproduction of every hat in stock. When customers come in they look the hats over on their stands, and when they see styles they would like to try on stand in front of a mirror and put their heads in the card bearing the design of those particular pieces of headgear. This plan saves a great deal of wear and tear on hats and saves the customer a great deal of time, but whether it will be appreciated by the fair sex is a matter of grave doubt.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

PUSH—AND KEEP PUSHING!

Did you ever try to get through a dense throng of people to the "speakers' stand," where you had an engagement to speak or sing or officiate?

In the beginning it may have seemed a near impossibility to get to your place, but—

You began to push gently on the outskirts of the crowd. You were good humored, but persistent. Little by little you intruded yourself wedge-like into the mass. Little by little the people gave way.

Some might glare at you for your apparent rudeness and give way grudgingly, even complainingly. Others were pleasant and accommodating.

It was not sufficient to indicate your desire to reach the platform. You needed to accompany explanations with a push—not a discourteous push, but a persistent one.

Well—

So is getting on in the world.

If you would reach the place selected by you as your place you must push through and push aside a lot of people.

They are in your way.

And they are a multitude.

If you do not push they will not budge. If you merely explain without pushing you will get nowhere. It is a case, where mere politeness and soft words will accomplish nothing.

Know this, that, however close and compact the mass may seem, if you will insist and persist and keep on gently pushing toward the goal the crowd will let you through. The crowd is built that way. It is pervasive to the human wedge driven by the powerful mail of the human will.

Do you want to stay on the outside and take things easy?

"The crowd will let you."

But if you are bound to get on and up neither humans nor devils can prevent you.

Success requires that you get to the platform. Thousands about you in life do not particularly care to get up there, but they will not voluntarily help you up.

If you want elbow room and a vantage point up at the speakers' stand, push for it!

Be also about it as you can be, but—

There is a comfortable place awaiting you up on the platform of life. There is better air up there—and wider vision.

Push—and keep pushing!

Truly Celestial.

When You're Dead.

It beats the device how the folks will weep as you lie in your coffin so fast asleep, and any of your goodness in countless ways while the parson preaches and talks and prays. "This queer how the public will outgrow and hand you up to the vaulted ceiling, when the undertaker has called your bluff and acquitted you full of unbalancing stuff. But when you walked on the earth, I swear, you were nothing more than a plodder there, and you'd have fainted or dropped, down dead at any praise that the public said. It's only when you're a lifeless stuff that the heartless public will note to the diff.—Los Angeles Herald.

A Congratulation Over the Phone.
Only yesterday I extracted seven teeth for a lady, and her husband just rang me up on the phone to say that "She spoke very highly of the way I did the work." Who had been to a great many dentists but I was the most painless of any who had ever had.

So it goes every day.
I cannot talk personally with everybody I would like to reach in a business way in this world.
Physical ability is unequal to such a task.
That I can speak in a limited way to you through these columns.
I am not talking simply to say something.

I have something to say.
It is this: "I am able to do Painless Dental work."
This ought to interest every man, woman and child.
Its attainment has been the desire of every progressive dentist for decades.

LEWIS CO. WILL ENLARGE PLANT

MODERN FIRE-PROOF STRUCTURE WILL BE ERECTED.

WILL BE OF CONCRETE

Factory to Be Up-to-Date in Every Respect—Floor Space Will Be Greatly Increased.

Manufacturing facilities at the Lewis Knitting Company will be augmented by 27,000 square feet of floor space when the additions recently completed for have been completed. The announcement was made yesterday that plans and specifications had been drawn and the contract let to the Sterling Construction Company of Milwaukee and the Knitting company officials said that representative of the Milwaukee concern this morning, it was decided to begin work on the additions immediately.

When the new buildings have been finished, the Lewis Knitting company will have one of the most modern and up-to-date knitting factories in the country. It will be well lighted, absolutely fire-proof and especially adapted for the latest machinery which the company will install.

The plans, drawn by Herschberg, Williams and Washburn, of Milwaukee, call for three separate buildings—one large, main structure and two smaller wings. The larger building, four stories in height, 124 by 41 feet, will be located on the company's ground just north of their old plant on South Main street. Two wings, one of which will connect the old and new buildings and "contain the stairways and entrances, will also be four stories in height. One, the connecting wing, will be 24 feet long and twenty feet wide, while the other will be 50 by 24 feet.

Reinforced concrete will be the material used throughout all the new buildings. In addition to this, in order to reduce the combustible material to a minimum, the window sashes will be of metal and the window panes of heavy wire glass. An automatic fire sprinkling system will be installed in both the old and new buildings, and this improvement, together with the fireproof qualities of the buildings, has reduced the insurance rate to an astonishing degree.

The main building of the addition will be used mainly for the new and heavier machinery while the old building, although some part of the equipment will be left there, will be used principally for office and storage. The offices will be moved from their present situation on Court street to that portion of the old factory facing on South Main street.

SENIOR TEMPERANCE LEAGUE ELECTED ITS NEW OFFICERS

At the regular meeting of the Senior Temperance League held last evening the following officers for the coming year were named: President, Carson Baumgardner; vice-president, Morrell Cleveland; Secretary, Rachel Schuler; corresponding secretary, Edna Madger; and treasurer, Eva Madger. The other regular business of the session was held.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

A Pleasant Surprise: About forty friends of Mrs. Frank Beck gathered at her home on Academy street Monday evening to celebrate her of her thirtieth birthday. The evening was spent in playing progressive euchre. Refreshments were then served, after which she was presented with a beautiful library table. The guests departed at a late hour, all agreeing that Mrs. Beck is a royal entertainer and wishing her many more happy birthdays.

Entertained at Supper: Twenty friends of Miss Abigail Knock were entertained at a supper given at her home, 523 Caroline street, last night. The repast was served in three courses and the evening was devoted to games and various other pastimes. A delightful time was enjoyed by all.

D. A. R. Convention: Members of the American Revolution are invited to attend the annual state conference to be held at Waukesha, Wis., October 5 and 6. All members expecting to attend will please notify the Janesville Regent not later than Wednesday.

Cannot Make Roads Pay.

In Switzerland, governmental railroad exploitation regularly works an annual deficit. With less than 3,000 miles of lines the budget for 1909 showed a deficit of about $925,000, and in 1908 of about $1,200,000, without taking account of the interest on the bonded debt amounting to $240,000,000. Government operation in that compact little country, with only about 3,000,000 of inhabitants and an area only about twice that of the State of Massachusetts, has given such unfavorable results that the public are crying out against it, and it promises to be a leading issue in the coming electoral campaign.

Joy of Aspiration.

To be truly happy is a question of how we begin and not of how we end; of what we want and not of what we have. An aspiration is a joy forever, a possession as solid as a landed estate, a fortune which we can never exhaust and which gives us year by year a rejuvenation of pleasurable activity. We have many of these to be spiritually rich.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Five new petitions for second naturalization papers were filed and will be heard at the February term. The petitioners, all natives of Norway, are as follows: John K. Eagona, of Footville, and Gudbrand Ogaard, of North Holm, Ole H. Klotson, and Martin Hansen, all of Evansville. Judge Gorman went to Green county this morning.

Among the cases which have recently been started and one of which will probably be tried at the forthcoming October term are two actions brought by Charles F. Laube of Broadhead, one against the Phoenix Insurance Co. of Hartford, Conn., for $500, and the other against the Union Insurance Co. of Philadelphia for $800. The plaintiff was the owner of a Temperance pool room which was destroyed by fire on Dec. 21, 1908. The defendant company, it is understood, refused to pay the insurance on the ground that in either case concurrent insurance was forbidden by the terms of the policy.

Suit Against Interurban.
The Rockford & Interurban Co. is defendant in a suit filed by Eliza Churchill to recover $10,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been sustained at the intersection of South Jackson and Riverside streets on Aug. 3, 1908, as the result of the sudden starting of a car while she was attempting to alight. The plaintiff claims that her hips and sides and back were injured and her nervous system shocked.

Action Against Hayes Bros.
The Dorland-Cumert Co. of Milwaukee has brought an action against the Hayes Bros. Co. to recover a balance of $3,347.50 alleged to be due on their $43,397.24 contract for furnishing structural steel for the main gate supports, Crane runway, balcony floors, etc., of the Chicago Sanitary Commission's power house at Lockport. The contract was made in April, 1905, and the company claims to have delivered 689 tons and 1901 lbs. at $62 per ton.

Railroad Litigation.
William L. Wilson, formerly a railway postal clerk in a number of the government and detailed on one of the St. Paul trains running between Milwaukee and Davenport, Ia., claims to have had his left leg broken in two places and to have sustained other injuries in a head-on collision with a C. & N. W. Co. train on March 7, 1907, and has brought a suit against the two railroads for $50,000 damages in the Rock county circuit court.

Suits Against Physicians.
Drs. George Pfaff and Charles H. Sutherland are defendants in damage suits brought by Albert Gleser and William McLaughlin. The setting of a fracture is involved in the first case and an amputation in the second.

HANDY ICE TOOL

Pick, Saw and Chisel All Combined
In One Implement.

It would be hard to find a more useful device than the ice tool shown in the illustration. With it you can pick, saw or chip and made into neat little blocks for use in glasses of lemonade or iced tea. The tool shows the construction of the tool. The lower edge of a heavy blade is saw-toothed. The end of the blade has a larger pick, to form a chisel, and on top is a pick. With the chisel and ice can be shaved.

CUTS ICE IN NEAT BLOCKS.

or clipped into small pieces, for use in the ice cream freezer or in frugging drinks. To make cubes the method is as follows: Saw across the top of a block of ice and then saw transversely across the first line. Reverse the tool and with the pick strike down in the cube formed by either line and a neat cube will just right size for the tumbler will fall out. This saves the waste that always follows an attempt to break ice into small pieces and the tool is made as cheap as any good ice pick of the size.

Adolph O. Eberhart becomes chief executive of Minnesota upon the death of Governor Johnson.

St. Paul.—Adolph O. Eberhart, chief executive of Minnesota, who became the executive of Minnesota through the death of Governor Johnson is a Republican. At the election in 1906, he received a majority of 32,000 votes, notwithstanding the fact that the late governor, on the opposition ticket, won by 72,000 votes. Mr. Eberhart was born in Sweden in 1870, and passed his young manhood in Dixon county, Neb. After being graduated from St. Ignace, Minn., he studied law with Judge Lorth Gray at Alton, Ill. His name, at that time, was Olsson, but since there was a dozen or more Olssons in Minnesota, whose first names were Adolph, he obtained the permission of the court to take his wife's name when he was married. He was elected to the state senate in 1902, and aided in passing the highway commission act, the rebate law and the railroad and warehouse commission act.

Why Children "Fidget."
Fidgets provoke wrath from thoughtless grownups. Often one hears an angry fool shouting: "Why can't you sit still?" but the child can't sit still; nature will not let it, but is stimulating it through its nervous system to make it grow. The fidget arises from lack of proper play or employment. Supply this or divert the attention to something interesting and the nerve centers will have work to do, the growing need is satisfied and the fidget stopped.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

THE little mother was slowly recovering from a nervous breakdown. "Make her think there hasn't really been anything the matter with her. That's the most important thing now," said the doctor. We promised we would and, of course, made every effort to do it. Then one day my lady Sanket came a-calling.

She greeted the little mother with all the heartiness of her left-handed affection, inspected her thoroughly and then pronounced cheerfully:

"How you have fallen away."

Ten pounds of pills and powders could hardly effect that ounce of fatness.

A twin sister—mentally, not actually—of that woman went to see a friend who had nervous prostration and found her in a bad spell of hiccoughs.

Immediately she remembered a similar case. She had known a girl once who got to hiccoughing and "they tried everything to stop her—sugar and frightening her and thumping her on the back and everything—and it didn't do a bit of good.

"Finally they took her to the hospital, but they couldn't do anything there and she got worse and worse and finally she died."

The girl with the nervous prostration and the hiccoughs promptly added hysterics to her other complaints.

The doctor said he would not treat the case if that woman were allowed to see his patient again.

An unbelievable case of fatnessness you say. Yes, but it actually happened and there are in this world a great many such people who somehow always manage to say the most discouraging thing, and they do an incalculable amount of harm.

And the queerest thing about it is that they are almost always well-meaning and would be heartbroken if they knew the trouble they made.

The habit seems to be like certain diseases whose victims never realize they are afflicted with them.

Are you ever guilty? Not of such blatantly fatless things as those I have quoted, but any lesser mistakes along that line?

Do you ever say, "How tired you look?" or "What's the matter. Aren't you feeling well?" or "Haven't you grown thin?" or any of those thoughtless little things that may be far from little to those who hear them?

There is no need to lie, but if you cannot say, "You are looking well," why comment on personal appearance at all?

WONDERBERRIES ARE GROWN IN THE CITY

Jonesville Gardners Make Success Of Luther Burbanks Latest Discovery.

Luther Burbanks new fruit, the wonderberry, can be successfully grown in soil adjacent to Jonesville. Recently the Massachusetts Horticultural society declared Burbanks latest discovery was a failure but those who have been fortunate enough to taste the pie or sauce made from the wonderberry disprove the Massachusetts authorities statements.

Burbanks discovery was made by crossing a non edible berry from the western coast of Africa and a non edible berry from the western coast of America producing what he called a wonderberry. Planted in ordinary soil the Jonesville gardners have found that they have grown rapidly developing a rich luscious berry resembling the blue berry, different in taste and even richer and more delightful to the palate.

These grown here this year were from seed and the vines did not grow to the height of the blue berry. Following the blue berry they turned from green to purple and when ripe are black. The berries grow mostly in clusters also after the style of the blue berry, and are very prolific of seed, there being as many as thirty-five of forty seeds about the size of a pinhead in one berry. The leaves are rather thick and are something of a single rose leaf, and now are about an inch and a quarter long.

Long Coat

This is a very agreeable coat of graceful lines and proportions and unquestionable taste. It was fashioned of heavy grey broadcloth hanging straight from shoulder to hem. It is closed at the waistline by a single black crocheted button, the wide square lapels of dull black silk meeting far below the bust. This silk used for the lapels is also utilized for lining the huge pocket-flap at the side, and for the deep cuffs which finish the slightly full sleeve. The buttons and simulated buttonholes of black crocheted also trim the pocket and cuffs.

ASSOCIATED CHARITIES PLAN FOR WINTER'S WORK

Annual Meeting Will Be Held on October 11th at the City Hall—Officers to Be Elected.

The Associated Charities met yesterday at Helmsstreet's drug store to map out the work for the coming year. The secretary, Miss Louise Crosby, gave an account of the work done since the last meeting. Rev. Willmann spoke of the society and the church societies working together. Captain Fleming of the Salvation Army offered a room to keep clothing in, and the same to be subject to the order of the officers of the charities. President Helmsstreet spoke of the work done the past year and the need of workers the coming year. The secretary was directed to correspond with the pastors of all the churches of the city, asking them each to appoint two delegates to act on the executive board of the Associated Charities. The Misses Crosby and Monahan were appointed a committee to make arrangements for the annual meeting, which will be held at the city hall, Monday, October 11th.

COMMANDER PEARY SLAPSCOOK AGAIN

PEARY SAYS DOCTOR WAS TAKING ADVANTAGE OF HIS WORK.

No Man Would Leave Such Priceless Things Behind, Says Commander Peary and Whitney Friendly—Hurries Work on Charges.

Portland, Me., Sept. 28.—As he was about to board a train for Bar Harbor at the Union station, Commander Peary had this to say concerning the north pole controversy:

"I wish to emphasize that the relations between Whitney and myself were at all times while he was aboard the Roosevelt and when he left to go aboard the Jeanie the relations as between gentlemen. Whitney occupied Capt. Bartlett's cabin on the Roosevelt, ate at our mess, and every courtesy was extended him. Most of Whitney's personal belongings are now on the Roosevelt, including musk ox, bear skins, etc."

Peary said he did not consider it conceivable that Whitney could have had any valuable instruments or documents of Dr. Cook. In fact, Whitney had stated that he merely had some of Cook's belongings and asked to put them aboard the Roosevelt.

Knew What Cook Was Up To.

"This I refused to permit, for obvious reasons," said Peary. "I knew what Cook was up to, and that he had been trying to take every advantage of my life's work and supplies."

Peary says he does not believe Cook left records, instruments or flags with Whitney, and cannot conceive that any man under the circumstances would have left such priceless things behind.

Is Hurrying Up Charges.

New York, Sept. 28.—The tension in the north pole controversy is expected to be relieved before the week is over by a statement from Commander Robert E. Peary specifying the grounds on which he alleged that Dr. Frederick A. Cook had not reached the north pole. When it was announced to Mr. Peary at his home at Engle Island, Me., that Harry Whitney had reached Labrador and had verified Dr. Cook's statement that he had informed Whitney of his success in reaching the pole, the commander intimated that he would delay no longer but would see Gen. Thomas H. Hubbard, president of the Peary Arctic club, at Bar Harbor at once, and that his statement might be expected soon afterward.

Dr. Cook, who will soon start on his first lecture tour, is greatly disappointed over the failure of Mr. Whitney to bring back with him from Greenland the instruments with which Dr. Cook made his polar observations.

Delay Verdict Until Spring.

The statement of Commander Peary justifying his course in refusing to permit Whitney to bring any of Cook's data or possessions on board the Roosevelt has been shown to Dr. Cook, but the latter declines to make any comment except that he will now be compelled to send to Greenland for these possessions, which were left in a cache by Whitney. This will probably delay a final verdict by scientific bodies until after next spring, which will be the first that the missing article can be recovered.

The Roosevelt is now on her way to New York city, and it is believed that she can arrive here by Wednesday. Commander Peary is quoted as saying that if the Roosevelt takes part in the Hudson-Palton celebration he will be on her bridge. Therefore many of his supporters think that he will be in the city in a few days.

Whitney Saw the Proofs.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 28.—The Journal-Courier publishes the following message from Harry Whitney, dated at Indian Harbor:

"Telegram received last night. Arrived Thursday. Rushing home. Cannot give date of arrival. Engine broken, returning on rail. Glad to get within reach of outside world. Sorry to hear of trouble between Cook and Peary. On Cook's arrival at Annatoli in April, 1909, he told of having got to the pole. He also showed maps, but I was asked not to tell Peary if he arrived before I left, but to tell him that Cook had beaten his record of 1906. Nothing having arrived for me, we started south on Roosevelt. Cook left box full of contents unknown to me to bring back, but Peary would allow nothing belonging to Cook aboard Roosevelt, so I was forced to leave everything in cache at Etah. Am well. Good shooting. Regards to all. HARRY WHITNEY."

Dr. Cook, in a lecture last night, under the auspices of the Arctic Club of America, at Carnegie hall, added no essential facts to his narrative of the discovery of the north pole, but supplied added circumstances to those passages which have been previously criticized for their lack of detail. In giving credit to those explorers who have preceded him, Dr. Cook omitted the name of Commander Peary, which on previous occasions he has always included.

ANNUAL RUSH OF
FREIGHT TRAFFIC

RAILROAD FACILITIES ARE TAXED TO THE LIMIT.

SHORT ON MOTIVE POWER

Impossible To Handle Local and Through Freight As Fast As It Comes In.

With the appearance of fall, comes the necessity of moving the great crops of the Mississippi valley and the annual freight traffic rush on the railroads begins. At no place on the whole North Western system is this rush more apparent than at Janesville. For the past few days the freight yards have presented a scene of frenzied activity with long trains headed by engines pulling in and out of the town and switch engines pulling every where.

To take care of the great and constantly increasing traffic, it has been found necessary to utilize every engine and press into service almost every engine who has running rights on the road. This number of switch engines has been increased until at present there are three working in the yards during the day and two at night with the possibility that more will be put into service. Few names of either extra engineers or firemen appear on the board and those who are posted are either waiting for engines or have not yet received their orders.

A good idea of the amount of extra traffic being handled can be gained from the number of extra trains sent out during the day. At the Janesville yards, from midnight last night until noon yesterday, thirteen extra trains were sent out. This number might have been greater, and has been exceeded during the past week for lack of motive power, not lack of freight, is holding down the number of extra trains. These extra trains are sent out in addition to the regular trains and in order to get them out a corresponding number of extra trains must have entered Janesville, which almost doubles the train movement.

Only a part of this traffic is billed for this city, most of it being through freight. There were over 150 cars for this morning, over 150 cars for Janesville factories which had not yet been switched to their destination. For the north, there were 766 cars waiting to be made up into trains. This great amount of traffic means that every one connected with the road works at top speed. The switch engine crews to make up the trains, the office force to check over the traffic, and get the train and engine crews out on time, while the round house force is compelled to keep an increased number of engines ready for service.

In spite of difficulties, it has been possible to keep fairly well abreast of the work. The most embarrassing perplexity encountered is the lack of motive power and the fact that it is harder to hear by the whistle than could have been made early in the summer to cut down expenses by curtailing the repair work at the Chicago shops. In view of the fact perhaps, that the usual fall rush might not take place, engines in need of repairs were allowed to gather at the For-tenth street shops and when it was found that they were needed, repairs could not be made fast enough to get them in service. Just about a week and a half ago, there were over 100 big freight engines at Fortenth street, mostly of the R type, which could not be utilized on account of repairs which could not be made.
Were these engines in service a great part of the difficulty attending with the present rush might be eliminated.

From present indications and from reports of those who have traveled through the great grain sections of the west, it would seem that this rush season had just commenced. It is stated that in the Dakota only one farmer in ten has finished his threshing. If this is true traffic will continue to increase for the next sixty days and the already congested condition rapidly grow worse.

The number of trains entering and leaving Janesville, registered on the block sheet at the telegraph station, is very large and much in excess of the ordinary registration. From midnight Sept. 27 to the same hour Sept.
28 there were eighty-four trains, regular and extra, that received orders.
This does not include the trains that entered or left Janesville at the south yards. These, if added, would easily bring the total to over a hundred.

Not only does this crowded condition exist at this point, but other cities on the main line are having the same experience. Word has been received from Milwaukee that the yards are nearly blocked and although it has been possible to keep the traffic moving thus far, any great increase will result in an almost complete blockade.

ICE BUSINESS WILL

William W. Watt Has Promoted a

Polo was a question of food and equipment.

The public knows little about the nature of the food supplies on which Commander Peary and Dr. Cook reached the goal of their ambition.
Peary took with him four hundred and fifty boxes of Tri-Sol, (the Shredded Wheat) which were placed on board the "Thetis" before it left New York harbor in July, 1908. This food will not only sustain life and strength, but it will keep indefinitely in any climate. Those who eat Shredded Wheat benefit every morning for breakfast and there are thousands who do will readily believe that this food played an important part in supplying the strength and endurance that were needed to finally crown with success the many polar expeditions of this great American.

PHENOMENON GIVEN
ITS EXPLANATION

Saturday's Electrical Disturbances
Were Results Of Sun Spots According To Scientists.

According to Father James L. Mc-Geary, of Marquette University, and a noted astronomer, the electrical disturbances which were felt in Janesville on Saturday last were the result of four large sun spots which were more than 30,000 miles in diameter.

Upon these spots, which are visible to the naked eye, according to the astronomer, Father McGeary thinks may be placed at least part of the responsibility for the series of mysterious magnetic disturbances that interfered with telegraphic and telephone service in America and in Europe Saturday night.

Father McGeary also believes that the "prosin" of Mars to the earth may have had an important part in the strange magnetic disturbances, the earth being in the magnetic field of both that planet, which he persumes to be magnetic, and of the sun, the magnetic influence of which, he considers is probably increased by the spot upon its face.

The influence of the northern lights, which are now plainly visible in this part of the world at night, and the increased power of magnetic earth currents also play a part in Father McGeary's explanation of the great disturbances. This astronomer admits that his explanation is largely theoretical, but points out that it means up a remarkable and hitherto unexplained field for scientific research.

Father McGeary said: "The four spots which have been forming for some days near the center of the sun are visible now in the northeast quadrant of the sun and are large enough to be seen with the naked eye. With the aid of smoked glass or deep colored glass a clearer, black spot, which is really four spots can be plainly seen."

CHAPTER XI.

Lady Maud found Mr. Van Torp waiting for her at the Bayreuth station.

"You don't mean to say you've come right through?" he inquired, looking at her with admiration as he grasped her hand. "You're as fresh as a daisy!"

"That's rather a dangerous thing to say to a woman nowadays," she answered, looking at him with a smile. "But mine won't come off. How is Margaret?"

"Her tone changed as she asked the question. "She showed me your letter about Logo," answered her friend without hesitating the question, and watching her face to see if she was surprised. She got into the carriage he had brought, and he carried by the door waiting for the porter, who was getting her luggage. She had no maid with her.

"I'm glad you have told me," she answered, "though I wish she had not. You probably think that when I wrote that letter I remembered about giving me money for my poor women."

"No," said Van Torp thoughtfully, "I don't believe I do think so. It was like me to make the offer, Maud. It was like the sort of man I've been, and you've known me. But it wouldn't have been like you to accept it. It wasn't exactly lowdown of me to say what I did, but it's so precious like."

"Down that I wouldn't say it again, and I suppose I'm sorry. That's all."

"His rough hand was on the side of the little open carriage. She touched it lightly with her gloved fingers and withdrew them instantly, for the porter was coming with her not very voluminous luggage."

"Thank you," she said quickly. "I understand you. I understand now."

"They drove slowly up the Bahnhofstrasse, through the dull little town, that looks so thoroughly conscious of its ancient respectability as having once been the residence of a duke of Württemberg, and of its vast importance as the headquarters of Richard Wagner's representatives on earth."

"See here," said Mr. Van Torp. "I've almost persuaded them all to run down to Venice, and I want to know why you won't come too?"

"Venice?" Lady Maud was surprised. "It's as hot as Tophet now, and full of mosquitoes. Why in the world do you want to take them there?"

"Well," answered the American, taking plenty of time over the monosyllable, "I didn't exactly mean to stay there more than a few minutes. I've bought a pretty nice yacht since I saw you, and she's there, eating her head off, and I thought you might all come along with me on her and go home that way, or somewhere, and what I want you to decide right away is whether you'll come, provided they will—for I don't suppose you and I could go mooning around in the yacht by ourselves."

"And I don't suppose," returned Lady Maud, musingly, "that you're so little, that if they decide not to come, you will have time for a long cruise."

"Now that's not fair," objected the American. "I didn't intend to put it in that way. Anyhow, will you come if they do? That's the point."

"Really, it depends a little on who they are. Do you mean only Margaret and that nice old friend of her—Mrs. Patience, isn't she? I never met her."

"Rushmore," said Van Torp, correcting her. "Then there's the Russian—Count Kralkinsky. Ever hear that name?"

"OYING FOR HELP.

Lots of it in Janesville But Daily Growing Less.

The kidneys cry for help. Not an organ in the whole body so delicately constructed.

Not one so important to health. The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

When they fail the blood becomes foul and poisonous.

There can be no health where there is poisoned blood.

Backache is one of the first indications of kidney trouble.

It is the kidney's cry for help. Heed it.

Doan's Kidney Pills are what is wanted.

Are just what overworked kidneys need.

They strengthen and invigorate the kidneys; help them to do their work; never fail to cure any case of kidney disease.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

"Never. It sounds Polish."

"He might be anything. Sometimes I'm absolutely sure he's a man I used to know, and then when I was on the ranch, and then again there's something quite different about him. Something about his legs or his eyes. I can't tell which. I don't quite make him out."

"They reached the hotel, and Van Torp went off promptly, leaving Margaret to take Lady Maud upstairs and introduce her to Mrs. Kulkumora.

An hour later the two young women were together in Margaret's room, while Potts was unpacking for Lady Maud in the one that had been secured for her in spite of all sorts of difficulties.

The prima donna was sitting at her toilet table, turned away from the glass, and Lady Maud occupied the only possible chair there was, a small, low easy chair, apparently much too small for such a tall woman, but less uncomfortable than it looked.

"Are you going on Mr. Van Torp's yacht?" asked Lady Maud suddenly.

"He spoke to me about it on the way from the station, and asked me to come, in case you accept."

"I don't know. Will you go if I do?" That might make a difference.

Lady Maud did not answer at once. She wished that she knew how matters had gone between Margaret and Van Torp during the last few days, for she sincerely wished to help him, now that she had made up her mind as to Logothetti's real character.

Nevertheless, her love of fair play made her feel that the Greek ought to be allowed a chance of retrieving himself.

"Yes," she said at last, "I'll go, on one condition. At least, it's not a condition, my dear; it's only a suggestion, though I hate to make one. Don't think me too awfully cheeky, will you?"

Margaret shook her head, but looked very grave.

"I feel as if I were getting a bad scrape," she said, "and I shall be only too glad of any good advice. Tell me what I had better do."

"I must tell you something else first as a continuation of my letter, for all sorts of things happened after I wrote it."

She told Margaret all that has been already narrated, concerning the news that Baraka had been set at large on chris on her folded knuckles, and seemed to be consulting her own reflection. It is a way some women have. Lady Maud glanced at her from time to time, but said nothing.

At last the prima donna rose with a sweep that upset the light chair behind her, one of those magnificent sweeps that look so well on the stage and are a little too large for a room.

She got her blotter and pen from a shelf, brought it back to the toilet table, picked up the chair in a very quiet and sensible way, as if she had never been on the stage in her life, and sat down to write.

"I shall take your advice, dear," she said, opening the blotter and placing a large sheet of paper in the right position.

Lady Maud rose and went to the window, where she stood looking out while Margaret wrote her message.

"You needn't write it out twice," she said, without turning round. "Just put 'duplicate message' and both addresses."

"Yes, Thank you."

Margaret was already writing. Her message said it was absolutely necessary that she should see Logothetti directly, and bade him answer at once, if he could come to Bayreuth; if important financial affairs hindered him, she herself would return immediately to Paris to see him.

She was careful to write "financial" affairs, for she would not admit that any other consideration could delay his obedience. While she was busy she heard, but scarcely noticed, an unearthly hoot from a big motor car that was passing before the hotel.

There must have been something in the way, for the thing hooted again almost at once, and then several times in quick succession, as if a gigantic brazen ass were beginning to bray just under the window. The noise ended in a sort of wild, triumphant shout, with a furious puff, and the motor took its off, just as Margaret looked up.

She looked up and saw Lady Maud half bent, as if she had been struck; she was clinging with one hand to the flimsy chintz curtain, and her face was as white as a sheet. Margaret started in surprise, and rose to her feet so suddenly that she upset the chair again.

"What has happened?" she cried. "Are you ill, dear?"

The delicate color came slowly back to the smooth cheeks, the thoroughbred figure in black drew itself up with elastic dignity, and the hand let go of the curtain.

"I felt a little faint," Lady Maud answered. "Did I frighten you? It was nothing, and it's quite gone. I assure you."

"You looked dreadfully ill for a moment," Margaret said in a tone of concern. "Won't you let me send for something? Tea? Or something else? I'm sure you have had nothing to eat or drink for hours! How disgracefully thoughtless of me!"

She was just going to ring, but her friend stopped her.

"No, please," she cried. "I'm all right, indeed I am. The room is a little warm, I think, and I've been sitting up in that stuffy train for 30 hours. Have you written your telegram? I'll put on my hat at once, and take it for you. The little walk will do me good. Where is the telephone? But they can tell me downstairs. Don't bother! Walking always brings me round, no matter what has happened!"

She spoke nervously, in disjointed phrases, in a way not like herself, for there was generally an air of easy calm in all she did, as if nothing really mattered in the least, save when she was deeply interested; and hardly anything interested her now except what she had made her work in all that belonged to that, she was energetic, direct and quick.

Margaret was sure that something was wrong, but let her go, since she insisted, and Lady Maud, folded the written message and went to the door. Just as she was going to turn the handle Margaret spoke to her.

Fluttering Hearts

"I have had heart trouble for 40 years; after taking 18 bottles of Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I am entirely cured, and to-day I do not feel the slightest effect of heart trouble." DAVID FRAZIER, State Soldiers Home, Erie, Co., Ohio.

Fluttering indicates a weakness of the nerves and muscles of the heart. Like palpitation, shortness of breath, pain in side and shoulder, it is frequently followed by the worst form of heart disease, therefore it should not be neglected.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is a most reliable heart medicine. It strengthens and regulates the heart action, stimulates the digestive organs, and increases the circulation.

The first bottle will benefit it, not your druggist will return your money.

What do you advise me to do?" she asked, in a sullen tone.

"Telegraph to Logo and prepay an answer of 50 words. Telegraph to his rooms in St. James' place and at the same time to his house in Paris. Tell him anything you like that really needs an immediate reply. That's the important thing. If he does not answer within 24 hours—say 36 at the most—he is either on his yacht or hiding. Because of the ugly word, dear—I don't think of any other. If you are afraid of the servants, I'll take the message to the telegraph office and send it for you. I suppose you have some way of signaling which the clerks don't recognize—if you sign at all."

Margaret leaned back in her chair in silence. After a few seconds she turned towards the glass, rested her head on her folded knuckles, and seemed to be consulting her own reflection. It is a way some women have. Lady Maud glanced at her from time to time, but said nothing.
